

Anna Semenko holds a bachelor's degree in marketing and is in the final stage of her Joint Master degree program Sustainable Development at the University of Graz. Within the program she has completed a mandatory academic mobility at the University of Leipzig pursuing the track 'Resource Management'. Her master thesis focuses on the uptake of plastic-based packaging in the 20th century.

At the STS Unit she assists the work of the VanillaFlow project, researching institutional barriers and drivers of the Vanilla-based flow batteries technology.
