

Brigitte Eder is a student at TU Graz. She is in the final stage of her bachelor's degree program Environmental System Sciences with the focus areas science and technology.

At the STS-unit she is working on the ClimCalc project at TU Graz, where she is researching on masses and emission factors of building materials in university buildings, to include their emissions in the greenhouse emission balance of universities.