

Franziska Häller, MA studied philosophy and PELP (political, economic and legal philosophy) at University of Graz and Graz University of Technology. During her studies, she specialized on practical ethics. Her bachelor thesis focused on animal ethics, her master thesis on climate ethics and justice.

As a junior researcher at STS-Unit, TU Graz, she works in projects on technology ethics, climate neutrality roadmaps and justice, and sustainable mobility.

Main fields of research sustainable mobility, (applied) ethics, climate justice, GHG-balancing