

8th International Polysaccharides Conference

September 17-22, 2023

Graz University of Technology, Austria

SPONSORSHIPS & ADVERTISING

The EPNOE conferences are an initiative of EPNOE, the Cellulose and Renewable Division of the American Chemical Society (ACS CELL), and the Cellulose Society of Japan (CSJ). Conferences are taking place biennially, previous organizers have been Nantes (France, 2021) or Aveiro (Portugal, 2019).

The 2023 conference is hosted in Graz, Austria. Conference topics are centered around cellulose, hemicellulose, starch, chitin, and other polysaccharides. The ambition of the EPNOE International Polysaccharides Conference is to gather academia and industry who are interested in polysaccharide-related R&D and applications. Relevant industries related to the research presented in the conference are for example materials industry, food industry, pharmaceutical industry and chemical biorefineries. With its focus on bio-based materials, -chemicals and processes the research presented at EPNOE is directly addressing the current transformation of the global industrial landscape towards a sustainable and bio-based economy.

Through the years, the conference has become one of the largest events in the field of polysaccharides, bringing together 400 to 500 researchers from academia and industry all over the world.

We are offering several sponsorship options to present your company at the 2023 EPNOE International Polysaccharides Conference in Graz. We are hoping that you take this opportunity to ensure your company's visibility at this traditional scientific event.
